

MNA2.3.3 - Training material and on-line courses

The availability of training material and on-line courses and videos is an essential support to the training activities and a powerful way of attracting users. The material has to be regularly updated.

The milestone is for "The availability of training material AND on-line courses and videos..". I suggest to make this clearer in the introduction section.

Minor: Replace EMI-2 with EMI 2

Section 1.2 "A number of new user tutorials" - can we indicate the number ?

Please include status of [taken from previous milestone MNA232] .The production of an online 'clickable' architecture diagram mentioned in MNA2.3.1 has been put on hold as the project as a whole did not have a suitable high-level architecture overview. Once this is available it will be turned into an online architecture diagram at which point work will resume on creating an interactive version which allows learners to click through to more information about various components of EMI.

I didn't find reference to events for which we produced and delivered (new/updated) training material. Would it be possible to include that as well?
