- NL-T1: Xen issue at Nikhef: Xen virtual machines cannot be restarted since a recent update of the Xen rpms. The solution appears to be a reboot of the Xen host. We are doing that this afternoon to prevent such situations happening over the Christmas break. All grid services will briefly be unavailable between 14:30 en 15:30 CET.

- NL-T1: SARA SRM was stuck. Restarted and then OK. Probably PNFS had crashed. Migration planned from PNFS to Chimera in the week of January 11, so we don't expect this to happen again.
- ES-PIC: There was a cooling incident last Saturday 19th Dec at PIC. We had to shutdown the services and start them back up when the temperature problem had been solved. Overall around 4 hours of outage for most of the tier-1 services. A SIR is being attached to the WLCGServiceIncidents page

Monday:

LHCb LFC does not happen in real-time for PIC. This is due to a configuration of the streams CERN-PIC for this service which needs to be corrected by CERN 3D experts. We agreed with them to wait until 4-Jan-2010 to do this intervention. Until then, the service is running ok but the DB is replicated from CERN with some delay.
